Subject (in full) Shanghai Labourers' Club.

Made by D. S. Mac Adie Forwarded by W Duncan DSD

The Shanghai Labourers' Club, 545 Kiukiang Road, which was formed by the General Labour Union, is also supported by the local Kuomintang. It is reported that the club receives a regular monthly subsidy of $300.00 from the local Tangpu from the monthly fund granted by the Central Kuomintang to facilitate activities of people's organizations in Shanghai.

Subject (in full) Shanghai Labourers' Club - to be used as a base for fomenting labour unrest.

Made by D. S. Mac Adie Forwarded by W Duncan DS

According to information collected among local labour circles, the Shanghai Labourers' Club organized by members of the General Labour Union ostensibly for amusement purposes is to serve as a secret meeting place of labourers of any trade during periods of unrest or strikes. The existence of the Dah Kung News Agency, an organ also promoted by the General Labour Union with offices in the same building, where the club is located, serves to eliminate the presence of other press men who might be interested in secret activities of the Club.

See File D. 2485

The "Shanghai Labourers' Club" promoted by the General Labour Union was formally inaugurated in its premises at 545 Kiukiang Road, on March 25. This club occupies the second floor of the building and has been formed for the mutual entertainment and convenience of members of local labour unions registered with the local Kuomintang. Alcoholic liquors may be obtained on the premises. In the opinion of the undersigned, the organization comes within the category of a Chinese club and as such should have a Municipal licence which as yet has not been applied for.
